Dear Dick,

I would like to thank Zandri Construction for their professionalism and leadership in managing the reconstruction of RPI's Winslow Building for the Junior Museum. The Junior Museum expansion was 4 years in the planning and two years in construction and has been a labor of love and a learning experience for many. The 4.5 million dollar project tested the metal of this small non-profit organization. As a board member and chair of the Facilities Committee I can certainly state that the project may have failed without your unwavering support and commitment to quality. Your Project Manager, Duncan Stewart, always held the best interests of the Museum at heart and navigated some very rough waters for us with diplomacy and fairness.

Successful construction project delivery is all about teamwork, Zandri's ability to coach this diverse team with a difficult budget is to be commended. We are immensely proud of our facility and welcome you to use it as a showcase of your work for future clients.

Sincerely,
